SUBJECT Disposition of Guerrilla Units in Kwangsi
25X1CPLACE
ACQUIRED [REDACTED]DATE OF
INFO. [REDACTED]

1. For a period of seventeen years, the Kwangsi Provincial Government, under the Nationalist regime, was controlled by the Kwangsi clique led by LI Tsung-jen, PAI Ch'ung-hsi, and HUANG Hsu-ch'u (黃旭初). When the Chinese Communists began attacking Kwangsi in the summer of 1949, over 100,000 Nationalist troops simply collapsed and the people welcomed the Communist liberation after years of extortion and corruption.
2. Although a number of guerrilla units were organized in Kwangsi before the Nationalist collapse, the Chinese Communists were able to destroy these units with the assistance of the local population. However, with the start of the winter grain levy and confiscation of arms in early 1950, strong opposition was voiced by the people and they began organizing anti-Communist forces to fight the program. In a period of ten months, anti-Communist forces were organized in all areas of Kwangsi, and repeated suppression campaigns conducted by the Communists proved ineffective. As of October 1950 Communist control extended to a distance of not more than 30 li around cities and on both sides of the railroad; all other areas were controlled by anti-Communist forces.
3. The strength of anti-Communist forces in Kwangsi is believed to be more than 80,000. Since there is no unified command over the anti-Communist units, the units operate independently, and the ranks of those killed or captured are filled by recruits.
4. The Nationalist leaders on Taiwan, as well as leaders of the Kwangsi clique, although interested in the force have not yet extended effective aid to the guerrillas. They have been given official designations only. Guerrilla leaders who have arrived in Hong Kong stated that their immediate needs are armaments, ammunition and unified leadership.
